

BREXIT LEGAL GUIDE 2019

04 February 2019 | Europe
Guides

As business makes increasingly vocal calls for legal certainty we are pleased to launch this Brexit Legal Guide. The new online guide will be regularly updated as the legal impact of Brexit evolves. The latest updates are indicated below.

As the clock ticks down businesses continue to identify the risks and opportunities of Brexit, prioritise their responses, take difficult decisions and put them into practice.

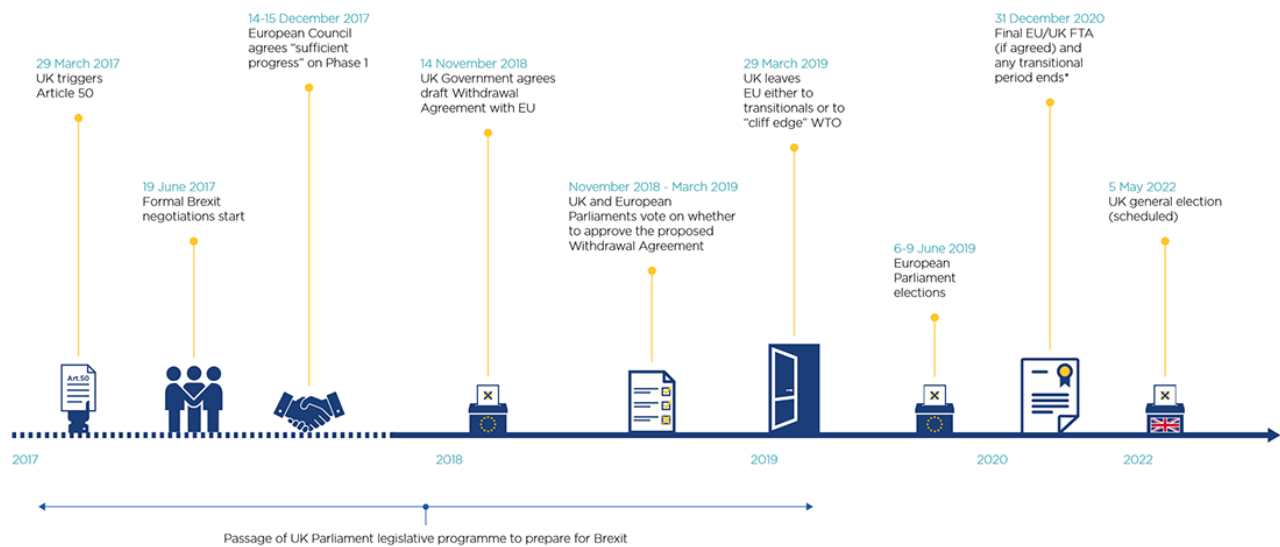

We have updated our online Brexit Legal Guide to take into account the latest developments and to explain the anticipated impact of Brexit in various practice and sector areas depending on whether the negotiated withdrawal deal is accepted or there is a “no deal” Brexit.

We hope that you will find our Brexit Legal Guide useful in this context.

Should you wish to discuss how Brexit affects you and what to do in response, please get in touch. To keep up to date with our latest Brexit analysis, subscribe to our Brexit blog.

TIMELINE

Brexit: charting a new course

* As above, except the agreement is "mixed", dealing with matters that are in shared or sole competence of the individual Member States, it also requires the approval of all continuing Member States in accordance with their individual processes for treaty approval
