Eric's long experience of working in the EU institutions, bringing and presenting cases in the EU courts and to the WTO and other international bodies, contributes an additional perspective to problem solving that is particularly valuable.

Eric works closely with the Herbert Smith Freehills' global network of offices, and his work focuses on WTO law and the EU's rules governing trade with non-EU countries, including the future relationship between the UK and the EU.

Prior to joining Herbert Smith Freehills Eric was a member of the European Commission's Legal Service between 1985 and 2016, where during part of the time he led the Trade Policy and WTO team. In that capacity, he routinely represented the European Commission in cases before the General Court and the European Court of Justice, and the European Union in WTO dispute settlement proceedings. He also participated in, and advised on, the negotiation of various international agreements involving the European Union.

Eric's experience includes advising:

Representing several confidential sovereign governments in high-profile WTO dispute settlement proceedings

Representing a confidential sovereign government in a trade dispute under a trade agreement with the EU

EU international trade agreement partners on extending their trade agreements to the UK during a transition period after Brexit and on rolled-over trade agreements with the UK once it has an independent trade policy, including the impact of WTO rules and interaction of certain changes with most-favoured-nation (MFN)

Advice and assistance to several public and private entities on the potential consequences of Brexit for the trade relationship between the EU and the UK, and the UK and third countries

The European Commission in more than 50 cases before the General Court and the European Court of Justice related to EU international trade measures/policies*

The European Union in more than 25 WTO dispute settlement proceedings related to the GATT, the GATS, the TBT Agreement, the SPS Agreement, the TRIPs Agreement, the Anti-dumping Agreement, the Anti-subsidy Agreement and the Safeguard Agreement*
