EXPERIENCE

Harry is a multi-disciplinary lawyer with a background in technology and experience as both a transactional and litigious lawyer. In the role of Strategic Projects Manager, he leverages this broad skillset to design and implement efficient, client-centric solutions on large-scale legal projects.

Harry acts as a conduit to bring together the firm's global technology and legal operations capabilities to ensure that clients always benefit from best-practice legal delivery. This expertise is applied both to significant legal projects, and to supporting clients' internal legal teams with the digital transformation of their legal operations.

During the first phase of his career Harry worked as a lawyer in a national property and projects practice, working on large infrastructure projects and commercial developments. He subsequently joined Herbert Smith Freehills as a solicitor in ALT's Disputes practice where his focus was largely dedicated to class action litigation and regulatory response.

In 2020, Harry commenced a year-long internal secondment as a Legal Automation Consultant in the firm's Legal Operations Team before returning to ALT as a hybrid lawyer focussed on client solutions.
