EXPERIENCE

Chad acts in cross-border disputes and international arbitrations seated across the Asia-Pacific region.

He has particular expertise with respect to disputes arising from M&A activity and joint ventures in Asia, particularly China. He assists clients in a number of sectors, with a strong interest in the energy and resources, manufacturing and technology sectors.

Chad also advises clients on structuring transactions and drafting dispute resolution provisions to best protect clients engaging in international investment and cross-border transactions.

Chad is now based in Melbourne. He was previously based in Hong Kong and maintains a Hong Kong practising certificate. His current practice sees him working on matters across Asia, collaborating seamlessly with colleagues in the region and elsewhere.

Chad has well-rounded disputes experience. In his formative years as a disputes lawyer he advised clients on fast track litigation, class actions litigation, Royal Commissions and interactions with regulators whilst under investigation. He acted for.

Chad regularly speaks and writes on issues relating to international arbitration. He is a Board member of local arbitration institution, ACICA, a member of ACICA's Victorian steering committee and a founding steering committee member for ACICA 45, ACICA's young practitioner's arm.
