EXPERIENCE

Through Drew's work leading the firm's Asia - Australia employment practice corridor he has developed an appreciation of the intricacies involved in ensuring cross-border advice is regionally consistent and locally appropriate. Domestically, Drew has a wealth of experience advising employers in all areas of Australian industrial relations and employment law, something which he is able to utilise for workforce planning roles across the region.

Drew's experience includes:

- acting for major financial and technology organisations on transformational change initiatives across the Asia-Pacific
- advising global mining and infrastructure organisations on collective bargaining programs in Australia
- developing and delivering commercially relevant training in Australia and across the Asia-Pacific on workplace relations issues
- advising on complex workplace investigations, including in highly regulated environments
- representing employers in industrial litigation in the Supreme, Federal and High Courts and industrial tribunals

ACCOLADES

Drew's expertise has been recognised in the Legal 500 - Leading Individuals (Australia Employment) and Doyle's Guide (NSW recommended Employment and Workplace Relations Lawyer).
